Prayer request for the ministry we are starting here through our church. Our pastor did an excellent sermon on 1 Peter 3:1-7 on Sunday and it was handled beautifully with an invitation for anyone being mistreated/controlled/abused or in a confusing relationship if any kind to contact the staff and he assured the congregation anyone who reaches out will be received with tenderness, compassion and very careful help. Also the church is supporting a fund raiser for domestic abuse survivors that my son is putting on for a school assignment. That fund raiser will be hosted by us on Saturday. Prayers appreciated. 🙏🙏

This is one of my favorite examples. It's instructive to me that Jesus invites the rich ruler to have relationship, but when he walked away Jesus didn't chase after him to try and convince him. It helps me to stop myself from chasing after people and instead trust God for what He's doing in that person's life.

QUESTION: could you please expand, Joy, on why we shouldn't say "why"?

12:24:04 From Deah Embree to Everyone:

this specification on holding space is so helpful. Unfortunately, my advocate subtly voiced her disagreement and distanced herself when I made decisions after divorce that she didn't agree with and I felt that once again that relationships were performance-based. Now, in relating to my also-abused daughter, I want to avoid that "rejection" when I have concerns about choices she makes. I'm attempting to just love her through it by holding space.
